EIGHTH ARMY
FACES FIGHT
FOR FLORENCEFORCES IN SUBURBS
FIND RESISTANCE
STIFFENING

BY GEORGE BRIA
Rome, Aug. 5 (P)—Eight army troops occupied all the southern suburbs of Florence today and brought up their forces along a 25-mile front for an assault across the Arno amid indications the Germans even yet might put up a fight for this cradle of Italian art and culture.

Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's command declared that the Germans were using Florence for military traffic despite their proclamation it was an open city, and had posted parachute troops along the north bank of the Arno river inside the city limits.

A message from the Florence national committee of liberation said the Germans had evacuated Florentines all along the north bank.

From commanding heights around Fiesole, less than three miles north of Florence, the Germans watched the Eighth army complete the occupation of the southern suburbs.

There were no reports of fighting inside Florence, but the headquarters statement said, "it is clear the enemy intends to oppose the crossing of the Arno on both sides of the city."

Enemy Pushed Back

There was a brief flurry of fighting between Eighth army elements and German rear guards before the suburbs were entered.

Forces still south of the Arno are pressing back against the river and faced the prospect of being cut up by British, New Zealand, Indian and South African forces.

At the western extremity of the Florentine front, the Eighth army was at the Arno at Montepulciano, and on the eastern end captured Rignano, 3 1/2 miles south of Pontassieve, which covers Florence's east flank.

In between, other elements were within a half-mile of the Arno near Signa, just west of Florence, and the same distance away just east of Florence after they captured Bagno-Aripoli.

The Allied communiqué reported that Polish and Italian troops on the Adriatic sector had extended their patrol lines more than two miles at many places across the Misa river, which is about 45 miles south of Rimini, the Adriatic anchor of the Gothic line.

It was announced officially that Allied forces landed on the Dalmatian Islands of Korcula and Orbieh, off the coast of Yugoslavia, on August 2, attacked enemy craft, inflicted casualties on the enemy garrison and withdrew without loss.

Super Explosive
Used For Rockets

Washington, Aug. 5 (P)—A super explosive called pentolite, 20 per cent more powerful than TNT, is being used in rocket projectiles.

Maj. Gen. L. H. Campbell, chief of army ordnance, announcing this today, said that a "small quantity of this explosive" will penetrate five feet of reinforced concrete.

SLEEPING DRIVER KILLED

Wayland, Aug. 5 (P)—John Eugene Rybicki, Jr., 24, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rybicki, residing near here, was killed early Saturday when the car he was driving crashed into a tree on a highway north of Wayland. Officers who investigated said they believed Rybicki had fallen asleep at the wheel.

Work-Or-Fight Order
Given In Philadelphia
As Troops Take Over

Philadelphia, Aug. 5 (P)—Leaders of the five-day strike which has paralyzed Philadelphia's transportation system ordered their followers back to work tonight in obedience to an army ultimatum.

The back-to-work order was issued in a broadcast which radio station WCAU said was authorized by James H. McMenamin, chairman of the strikers' "general emergency committee," a few minutes before McMenamin was arrested on a charge of violating the Smith-Connally act.

Within an hour, strikers assembled at the car barn which had served as strike headquarters, began signing up to resume their regular runs. The first five to sign were members of the strike committee, who broke the news to the men.

Thousands of troops had poured into the city and the army was ready to operate the Philadelphia Transportation Company's vehicles itself unless the men returned to work at 12:01 a. m. (EWT) Monday morning.

Three other men also were arrested in Smith-Connally act violation charges: William C. Dixey, arrested like McMenamin at the radio station; Frank P. Carney, president of the PRT Employees

MANY GERMANS
STAY IN TURKEYInternment Better Than
Return To War-Torn Homeland

Ankara, Aug. 5 (P)—A mass revolt was developing tonight among Germans in Turkey against returning to their homeland despite hints by the Gestapo that reprisals would be taken against members of their families in Germany.

A persistent report here following the breaking of relations with Germany said that Franz von Papen, Nazi ambassador to Turkey, would not return to the Reich despite the fact his family was in Germany. Earlier reports said von Papen left by air for Germany two days ago.

Up to late this afternoon only enough Germans had applied for reservations to fill one sleeper of the five trains the Turks made available for those wishing to return. A German source estimated that at least 50 per cent of the 3,000 Germans in Turkey would choose internment or closely-controlled freedom rather than return to the Reich.

Romanian, Bulgarian and Hungarian representatives here said they expect the Germans to apply stiff pressure upon their governments to break diplomatically with Turkey. The Romanians and Bulgars feel they are strong enough to resist Nazi demands but there are some signs the Hungarians will give in, including the fact Hungarians in Turkey have been ordered to ready themselves to leave the country and some actually have gone.

RECORDS FALL
IN HEAT WAVEMidwest Gets Respite;
Fog Halts Shipping
At Soo Locks

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A runaway temperature continued to set new records in Atlantic seaboard states today in an unprecedented heat wave, while cooling rains and thunderstorms brought temporary respite to several midwestern states.

New maximum temperatures for Aug. 5 were recorded in New York City with a thermometer reading at 1 p. m. (EWT) of 94 degrees, in Boston where 99 degrees was recorded at 3 p. m.—an all time high for August—and in New Haven, Conn., which sweltered under 96 degrees temperature. An unofficial 98 was recorded at Danbury, Conn.

Baltimore was expected to suffer a 100-degree maximum, the weather bureau predicted.

Rains brought relief last night in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Michigan, although one death was reported in Detroit. Fog halted shipping through the Soo locks, causing a steamer collision on Lake Superior.

A slight easing of temperatures was recorded in Texas, now in its 13th day of blistering weather, with 97's recorded at Dallas and Fort Worth.

Drought continued unabated in the Nashville, Tenn., area as the temperature hovered around 89 degrees, five above normal.

On the west coast Los Angeles reported a minimum temperature of 58.

High School Rolls
Reveal Drop-Off

Washington, Aug. 5 (P)—Concerned about a high school enrollment drop of 1,000,000 students since the start of the war, the government today launched a national go-to-school drive.

The Federal Security Agency, the Office of Education and the Labor Departments' Children's Bureau joined with the War Manpower Commission in urging that high school age boys and girls complete either full time courses "or well planned school-and-work programs."

NEW LANDING
MADE ON BIAK
BY U. S. TROOPSNIPPONESE PUSHED INTO CORNER ON
GUAM ISLAND

BY MURLIN SPENCER
General Headquarters, Southwest Pacific, Sunday, Aug. 6 (P)—Strong American forces stabbed deeper into battered and trapped Japanese forces in British New Guinea, and a new landing on Biak Island, over 400 miles westward, drew a tighter noose on other encircled Nipponese units, headquarters announced today.

The retreat of Japan's second army from the Geelvink Bay area westward of Biak, continued under blazing Allied warfare and naval harassment.

American forces on the coast have pushed two miles eastward of the Drinimur river in British New Guinea in heavy attacks which cost the trapped Japanese another 441 men. Their counted toll in that area now is 4,311.

Counter-Attacks Suicide
The coastal forces began the push Wednesday, while the inland flank of the Drinimur river line was repulsing four suicidal Japanese assaults in 11 hours of fighting, in which hundreds of Nipponese were slain.

Through continual Allied aerial and naval harassment the main Japanese staging and bivouac areas east of the river "present a picture of attrition and disaster in his rear," the communiqué said.

It is estimated that 20,000 of the trapped Japanese forces—originally estimated at 45,000—have "been employed in this perilous line of communication, with heavy personnel losses," the communiqué added.

The new Yank landing on Biak was at Korim Bay, on the island's northeast coast, Thursday morning. Troops with aerial and light naval support quickly occupied the enemy supply base.

Remnants of the Japanese garrison on Biak had attempted to use Korim Bay as an escape route. It is northward across the island from Mokmer airdrome, which the Americans captured 11 days after they first landed on Biak May 27.

Supply Lines Disappear
In the Drinimur battle area—which is 17 miles east of Aitape—the advancing American forces wheeled south Friday after two days of fighting had carried them eastward of the river.

The communiqué, in describing continual attacks by air and surface craft on Japanese assembly and supply areas, said the past week's "completely integrated teamwork" had resulted "in a systematic destruction of the enemy's lines of communication."

"The sinking of the constantly shrinking number of barges, the destruction by direct hits of truck columns, roads and bridges, the burning and firing of supply dumps have undoubtedly been contributing factors to its tactical failure to deliver a successful combined and coordinated attack."

Drive On Paris
Gains 27 Miles

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

Supreme Headquarters, Allied Expeditionary Force, Sunday, Aug. 6 (P)—Hard-driving American armor, sweeping 75 miles in one day to the end of the Brittany peninsula, entered the great port of Brest yesterday while other units reached the Loire River sealing off the peninsula at its base.

At the same time, in a wheeling movement aimed at Paris, other American armored forces drove eastward 27 miles from their previous positions.

U-Boat Pens Blasted

It was not immediately known at supreme headquarters, which of several columns moving southward had reached the Loire or where, Field dispatches had reported American units racing toward both Nantes, French port 15 miles from the mouth of the river, and St. Nazaire, another big port 30 miles to the west. Still another column had captured Pontivy 15 miles from Lorient—the peninsula's fourth great port.

The time of the entry into Brest was not known at supreme headquarters but British heavy bombers blasted the submarine pens there at mid-day and it was disclosed that Spitfire pilots flying as escorts reported sighting Allied vehicles at Morlaix, within 35 miles of the port.

Port Big War Prize

As Brest still smoked from a blasting by British heavy bombers, an official announcement said that armored columns had fought into the city limits of the port, at which fresh armies can be unloaded for the showdown battles of Europe.

Last unofficial reports had put these forces 75 miles away. Equally momentous was the drive on Paris, which already has paid off a big dividend by crumbling the last of the German defenses in Normandy.

Twenty-seven miles east of their last reported positions, and on the direct route to the capital of France, American forces forced across the Mayenne River two miles below the city of the same name.

These forces were nearly 50 miles east and slightly north of Rennes, whose format capture was completed yesterday, and 27 miles due east of their communications base at Fougères.

Nantes Goal Near

These quick-breaking developments almost subordinated the third great movement produced by the breakthrough from Normandy, the drive to seal off the whole Breton peninsula.

One armored force bearing down on the U-boat base of St. Nazaire was now less than 18 miles away after sweeping several miles south of St. Gildas Des Bois.

WRECK IS FATAL
TO 47 NEGROESAtlantic Coast Train Hits
Broken Rail, Strikes
Freight

Stockton, Ga., Aug. 5 (P)—Crushed in the twisted wreckage of a railroad coach, at least 47 negro laborers homeward bound for the week-end were killed and 22 others injured here late last night when an Atlantic Coast Line passenger train hit a broken rail and hurtled into a sidetracked freight.

Four more bodies were believed pinned in the tangled mass of steel and work crews tonight were attempting to extricate them.

A hospital car carrying wounded soldiers to Finney General hospital at Thomasville, Ga., was one of six coaches derailed, but ACL officials said only four servicemen were injured in the wreck and they only slightly. The soldiers were taken to Moody Field at Valdosta, Ga.

The last six cars of the 14-car train, No. 57 en route from Waycross, Ga., to Montgomery, Ala., left the tracks, said ACL General Manager Sibley at Wilmington, N. C. He said besides the negro workers' coach and the hospital car, the derailed cars included a sleeper and three empty coaches. No one was injured in the sleeper, Sibley's statement added.

Morale Of Merrill
Marauders Shaken
By False Promises

BY REILMAN MORIN

Gen. Stilwell's Headquarters in India, Aug. 5 (P)—"An almost complete breakdown in morale" of Merrill's Marauders, one of the most famous American combat organizations, was disclosed today by army authorities, who blamed "ill-faded promises" to the men and faulty hospital procedure which sent convalescents back to the firing line.

The difficulty arose at the end of May, when the American position at Myitkyina was precarious, but for security reasons it was disclosed only today following capture of that Japanese base in Burma.

As a result of an official inquiry ordered by Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, it was recommended that the men be placed in favored position for rotation transfers to the United States.

The Marauders' leader, Brig. Gen. Frank Merrill, although occupied with directing one phase of the Burma operations, visited the units where disaffection was evident and gathered all available information

RED INFANTRY
AT BORDER OF
EAST PRUSSIAFRONTIER VILLAGES
IN FLAMES; CZECH
ROAD OPENED

BY TOM YARBROUGH

London, Sunday, Aug. 6 (P)—Russian troops yesterday captured the key road junction of Strij in the Carpathian mountains on the invasion routes into Czechoslovakia, while in the north other Soviet forces rolled through 40 villages in a fight awaying close to the German East Prussian border.

"Fires are raging in East Prussian frontier towns which now are objectives of Red army infantry attacks," said a Pravda front dispatch. Among the towns listed in the daily Moscow communiqué was Yrbrudzie, nine miles from the frontier and 31 miles west of Kaunas.

Reserves Thrown In

It was obvious that the Germans had slowed the Russians on most key sectors by hurling in thousands of reserves rushed to the east from central Nazi reservoirs.

Strij, 38 miles south of Lwow and about the same distance from the Czech border, commands the key road junction of the Wyszkow and Beskid passes into Czechoslovakia. Its capture by Marshal Ivan S. Konev's first Ukraine army was announced in an order of the day by Premier-Marshals Joseph Stalin.

Russian troops are within 19 miles of the border at Mizyun Stary, which is about half-way between Strij and the frontier. Mizyun Stary was captured several days ago by the Russians, and the Germans for two days now have told of "heavy Soviet pressure against the Carpathian passes."

Bridgehead Widened

Beyond the enemy's broken Vistula river defenses, southwest of Sandomierz, the Russians were reported within 30 miles of Krakow and 75 miles from German Silesia, after crossing the Nida river. But the Soviet communiqué said of this sector only that the bridgehead had been widened and several more localities seized. The villages were not identified.

East of this area, in the triangle formed by the Vistula and San rivers, Marshal Konev's forces captured 72 localities of the 243 taken on all fronts during the day. They cleaned out the area east of Sandomierz and southward along the east bank of the Vistula as far as Rozniaty, 27 miles below the confluence of the two rivers.

Another nine-mile strip from Rozniaty down to Czyska, just a few miles from Mielec, also was taken. Rozniaty is six miles east of Polaniec, one of the west bank towns taken in the break-through Thursday and Friday toward Krakow.

Konev's troops now were pushing down both banks of the Vistula toward Krakow. Poland's fifth largest city and last big German stronghold short of industrialized German Silesia.

Inside besieged Warsaw Polish patriots lost the rail station in the heart of the city, a message from the underground said. The Poles were suffering from ammunition and arms shortages.

SCHEDULE TALK ON BLOOD BANK

Public Invited To Red
Cross Meeting Here
Monday Evening

The Delta county Chapter of the American Red Cross, in cooperation with the Michigan Department of Health, is sponsoring a blood plasma clinic in Escanaba Sept. 4 to 8, inclusive, and in preparation for this clinic an information meeting will be held at the Escanaba city hall at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening.

L. J. Jacobs, chairman of the county Red Cross Chapter, yesterday said the public is invited to attend the meeting. The value of the plasma program will be explained by a local physician.

Heads of organizations in the city have been invited to attend and to bring with them as many of their members as possible. Purpose of the meeting is to provide information on the Red Cross blood plasma program, and to obtain cooperation in making the clinic here an outstanding success. It is the first time in local history that local people will have the opportunity to become blood donors at a local clinic.

The clinic will be held in the Escanaba Junior high school. Committees are being organized in the cities and townships in the county, and it is expected that thousands of blood donors will be found in Delta county.

Persons 18 to 50 years of age are eligible to become blood donors at the coming clinic. Those 18 to 21, inclusive, must have written consent of a parent. No persons who weigh less than 115 pounds will be permitted to give blood.

Chairman Jacobs said yesterday that the majority of those who are offering to give blood are women. Many are mothers, wives or sweethearts of men in service.

Persons seeking to become blood donors are asked to write Chairman Jacobs. They will be notified when to appear at the clinic in September. None will be received at the clinic unless they have previously been contacted through the committees or a committee member. The large number expected to appear makes it necessary to hold to a schedule during the period of the clinic.

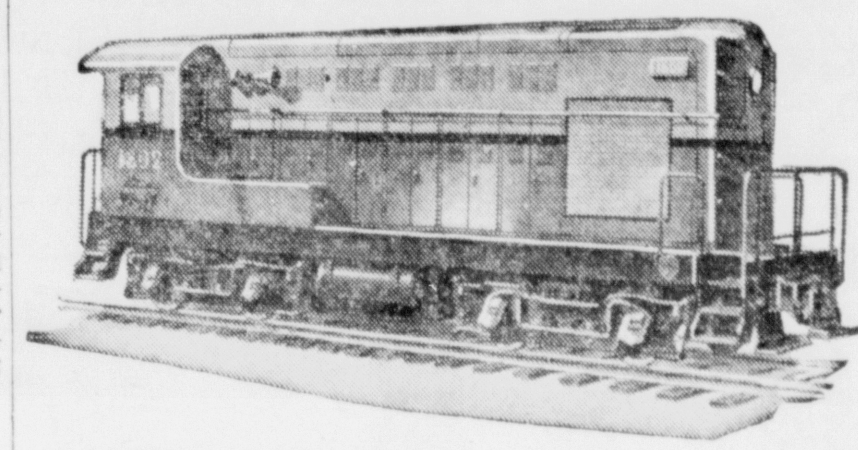

M-35 Blacktop Is Completed Friday

The construction of nine miles of new blacktop surfacing on highway M-35 from the Marquette county line south to two miles below Rock was completed Friday night, and the finishing work opened the road to traffic yesterday.

J. T. Sharpsteen, county road engineer who supervised the maintenance work for the state, said the last seven miles were done at the rate of nearly two miles per day, an all-time record in construction speed. Favorable weather made this possible.

Odesa was built by order of Catherine the Great of Russia about the same time Washington, D. C., was founded.

Fairbanks-Morse Will Build Diesel Engines

Beloit, Wis.—A new Diesel railroad locomotive, driven by the same powerful engine used to equip our newest U. S. Navy submarines, will be unveiled, christened and presented to the nation here August 8.

The new locomotive was built by Fairbanks, Morse & Co., and it makes its debut as a result of extensive postwar planning to provide jobs for the company's present workers as well as its 1,200 men now in service. It is the first of a new general line of locomotives Fairbanks-Morse plans to build after Victory.

The company builds its new engines in 2,000-horsepower sections, so constructed that three of them can be coupled together for a powerful 6,000-horsepower locomotive. Its Diesel engines are exclusive in design, because each two pistons operate opposite each other in each cylinder, and are powered by the same combustion chamber charge. Thus, space and weight are saved, and each cylinder does the work of two.

The engine has passed unusually severe trials in the naval submarine service. It was developed in the 1930's for locomotive use, but later, when the submarine expansion program was launched, the engine was given rigorous tests for the overseas craft.

It passed these tests successfully, and the navy demanded the entire Fairbanks-Morse output. In recent months, however, it has been possible for the company to divert a few of the engines for construction of locomotives because these also are vitally needed in the war program.

This gave Fairbanks-Morse an opportunity to crystallize its postwar planning so that it can resume manufacture of Diesel-powered locomotives on a large scale just as soon as there no longer is need for submarine engines. The new locomotive to be presented August 8 not only is the first of these, but also is tangible evidence of industrial planning for the post-war era.

Communication

A Conchle Replies
CPS 135,
Germfask, Mich.
August 3, 1944.

The Editor
The Escanaba Daily Press
Escanaba, Mich.
Dear Sir:

The article in today's Daily Press entitled "Germfask Has Conchle Camp" was evidently intended as a factual news story and not as an editorial, yet it seems to me that it does not deal fairly with the facts. I would judge from reading the story that this does not result from any intention on your part to distort the facts, but rather from lack of familiarity with all of the pertinent facts.

To begin with, you refer to conscientious objectors as "men whose religious beliefs prejudice them against active participation in warfare," and farther on you say "Several claim memberships in well known denominations which have not established church regulations prohibiting their members from entering combatant military service." Now—aside from the fact that everyone with any religion at all is "prejudiced" against killing people, and that COs are simply those few who stick to this basic belief and refuse to do murder in wartime while most other people only use that belief in peacetime—reference to the Selective Service Act would quickly and easily have shown you that the 4-E classification does not depend upon membership in any particular religious organization, and furthermore reference to official Selective Service statistics would have shown that only four denominations have larger groups in Civilian Public Service than the group of unaffiliated men. Those larger groups are the Mennonites, Brethren, Friends (Quakers), and Methodists. Altogether there are 117 denominations or groups listed, and it might interest you to note that Catholic comes ninth in order of numbers.

This next fact seems unimportant but since everyone around Germfask knows it you might be interested in it—The first contingent did not arrive "about six months ago," but actually on May 12 of this year.

Next you relate that "camp officials naturally are skeptical because 'from 25 to 35 per cent of the men are on the sick list virtually all of the time,' and that 'The work ability of those actually on the job also has been decidedly unsatisfactory.' The fact is that many of the men who were sent here had been continuously on the sick lists in the various camps from which they were sent. Colonel Lewis F. Koech, head of the Camp Operations Division of Selective Service, said of this camp in May that it is "simply a place where the boys who could not do heavy work or who could not adjust to the other government camps might be able to find work better suited to their qualifications and abilities." Koech's assistant, Mr. A. S. Imirie, confirmed this statement when he visited the camp, on June 13th. In other words, no one really expected much work from this group of COs, because—at least as far as Selective Service was concerned—the camp was set up as a center for those who were in need of "medical observation," and some of the men had already been recommended for release by examining doctors at the other camps.

Further, most of the men who were not sent here for medical reasons were sent because they had expressed unwillingness to work at the tasks provided under the conditions of conscription. They are not ashamed of their "poor work record," but regard it as the inevitable result of a conscription system which exacts penal servitude as the price of conscience. Many, including the writer, believe that a "good" record in such a situation would be a poor service to the public, which—since most of it is intent upon the progress of the war—is carrying on what it believes to be the most effective possible opposition to foreign conscription. Some of us believe that the greatest public service we can perform in the present situation is to point out as clearly as we can that conscription itself—the notion that one man or group of men can or should control the lives of other men—is wrong, and that it is no less wrong here than it is in Germany or Italy or Japan.

But that gets into the field of opinion again, and we are concerned for the moment only with facts—specifically, facts concerning the camp here at Germfask, and which your story indicates were not available to you when you wrote.

The fact that we get a $5 monthly allowance was evidently supplied by someone outside of the local camp administration, because these men all know that we have not yet gotten that $5 allowance. We are supposed to get $5, beginning with the allowance for July, which we expect to receive within the next few days. Up until now, the allowance has been $3 per month, which—as a little mental arithmetic will show—was not enough to keep a man in cigarettes, let alone provide for ordinary expenses of living and an occasional leave or furlough out of camp. We are not paid, and there is no provision for dependents or for accident compensation. Thus, not only the men here, but their wives and families as well, are in fact paying for their conscientious beliefs. When you reflect that some men have been in CPS camps for three long payless years now, you can hardly feel justified in giving the impression that this is an easy life, whether this project is progressing well or not.

We know that many people feel that we are wrong in our belief that war can best be stopped by refusing to fight in it, and we know they have as much right to believe we are wrong as we have to believe we are right. But we want their beliefs about us to be based upon the fullest possible information, and not upon such partial accounts as may lead them to incorrect conclusions.

In conclusion, I wish to emphasize that my own impression of your story was that it was not intentionally misleading, but that it was evidently written upon the basis of information that someone had led you to believe was correct.

Sincerely,
GERALD F. DINGMAN.

Alber Predicted It

PRESIDENTIAL events inside Germany are closely following a pattern predicted by Louis J. Alber before a Rotary club ladies' night program, in Escanaba, several months ago.

Before the war Mr. Alber was engaged as a booking agent for a large national syndicate, interested in bringing foreign figures of power to the United States for speaking tours. Mr. Alber spent months in the European capitals and was able to personally meet Hitler, Mussolini and other high officials of the Nazi and Fascist movements.

What is best remembered now by his deeply interested audience here, is his prediction that as the close of the war approached and the final destruction of Nazism was certain, the militarists of Germany would revolt against Hitler and attempt to wrest control of the German government, in order to sue for peace. He predicted that Hitler's Gestapo, or personal army, would prove stronger than the Junkers and their followers and that a wholesale purge, such as the world has never before witnessed, would follow to eliminate most of Germany's leading military figures, thus accomplishing a job the Allied powers would, otherwise, be called upon to do, at war's end.

Mr. Alber's predictions are now being carried out, almost to the letter, within Germany, if the meagre reports now seeping through the Nazi frontiers are to be credited. Hitler, himself, is cleaning out the class that have planned all of Germany's wars of the past. He can't do a too thorough job, to suit the Allied forces now closing in upon Germany herself, from all her former sacred frontiers.

As predicted by Mr. Alber, the Gestapo, is the force that must be finally wiped out within Germany, before remaining elements of the Junker party, that escape the present Hitler purge, can be finally dealt with by Allied conquerors, to insure the future peace of Europe.

The situation within Germany is about as perfect as the Allies could hope for and the final denouement cannot be long delayed.

Hinders War Effort

AMERICA'S racial issue, which has been smoldering since the ugly riots in Detroit, has flared anew in Philadelphia, where union transport workers, against the advice of their officials, went on strike because the bus and street car companies upgraded Negro employees.

In retaliation, the Negroes pursued the obviously wrong course by beating whites and looting stores. Most of the rioters were teen-age boys, who have no sense of responsibility and do not realize that the color issue cannot be settled by force.

The mistake was made first, of course, when the union workers went on strike, merely because the transport companies gave promotions to the Negroes. What objection there could be to the employment of Negroes as street car operators and bus drivers, in face of the fact that Negroes are now employed as mail carriers, elevator operators, hold responsible jobs in war industries and are fighting on overseas battle fronts, is difficult to understand.

Labor unions are dedicated to the purpose of elevating the living standards of the common man, but apparently some of their members would exclude Negroes from these social gains. This fact is brought out clearly in the union's attitude on employment of Negroes as firemen on railway locomotives in the South. The white-controlled unions were willing to allow Negroes work as firemen in the hand-firing days, but with the installation of stokers they have since excluded them from these well-paying positions.

The Negro problem will never be solved in this country by attempting to suppress the Negroes. They are steadily raising their percentage of literacy, and are scoring outstanding achievements in cultural and industrial fields. They are acquiring intelligent leadership, and the movement they have started to gain their constitutional rights cannot be stopped.

The Philadelphia strike is also unfortunate because it has tied up transportation in an area where there are thousands of highly essential war workers. Absenteeism at these war plants is running beyond 50 per cent. It is a sorry exhibition of how to win a war to save democracy.

It's Very Unusual

LIKE the Californian boosters would say, last week's hot spell was very unusual for the Upper Peninsula, but even though the mercury during the day was higher than customary, the evenings in Escanaba and vicinity were delightfully cool.

Temperatures in this vacationland, however, were nothing compared to the thermometer readings in Chicago, Detroit and other Middle West centers, and refugees from those cities are finding our cool evening breezes a pleasant relief.

So here we again have a strong argument for selling the Escanaba area to summer vacationists. Situated at the top of Lake Michigan, this community receives the benefit of the prevailing south winds. No wonder so many visitors ask us why Escanaba does not make a greater effort to attract summer vacationists. Doubtless, it is a project that should be included in our postwar development program.

What do we need? A new summer hotel, maybe. More modern, well-equipped cottages for rental by the public, an improved bathing beach, and all the recreational facilities that the vacationing public finds at Potoskey, Harbor Beach and other famous Lake Michigan resort communities. We likely can get all these things, if we have the vision and enterprise to make such dreams come true.

Seaway More Needed

WHILE we are thinking about postwar planning, what is being done in Escanaba and other Upper Peninsula port cities to tie in with the long fight that has been made to obtain the construction of the St. Lawrence waterway?

Interest appears to have languished in this project in this area, although in Milwaukee and other Wisconsin ports the campaign toward this objective is being carried on unceasingly. Leathem D. Smith, Sturgeon Bay shipbuilder, envisages the seaway as a means of stimulating industrial activity after the war. He also points out that a large portion of America's naval fleet could be stationed in our fresh water harbors, thereby reducing the maintenance expense that is occasioned by salt water conditions.

The Great Lakes region has suffered declines in population in recent years because of the upsurge of industrial activity on the seacoasts. Many war plants have been built in California, Oregon, Washington, along the Gulf of Mexico and the Atlantic coast. When these industrial facilities are converted to civilian production after the war, they will enjoy a decided shipping advantage in world trade.

Building of the St. Lawrence waterway would bring foreign markets closer to the Middle West. This will mean accelerated industrial activity in this land-locked region, all of which will result in more business for Great Lakes shipping interests, the railroads, truck lines and everyone else.

PLACE FOR U. P. MAN (Iron Mountain News)

On the present outlook the Republicans and the Democrats will both bait the upper peninsula voters with a candidate taken from this part of the state.

For many years the Republicans elected a U. P. man auditor general. O. B. Fuller, of Delta, was a fixture in the office for more years than any other state official had served. The past four years the peninsula has been represented among the elective officials by Herbert Rushton, of Escanaba, serving as attorney general. By reason of Mr. Rushton's decision not to seek renomination, this post is open to bidders this year. Among the possible aspirants for the succession is, said J. J. Herbert, of Manistowic, now a regent of the University of Michigan. Whether Mr. Herbert actually wants the office remains to be shown. There is, as yet, no word from him that he is receptive. Thurman Doyle, Menominee, is the prospective Democratic nominee for the office.

Another upper peninsula man, one who would be pleased to have a place on the Republican state ticket, is John D. Morrison, of Marquette, who would like to succeed Mr. Brown as auditor general. He has been endorsed by the Marquette county Republican committee, and has, it is said, received encouragement from the prospective dominant forces in the Republican convention, of which Governor Kelly is the head.

Mr. Morrison is well qualified for the office. There is no doubt that he would give it conscientious and vigorous direction.

Who represents the upper peninsula on the ticket will depend principally on the preference of the Kelly-led delegates in the convention. But at least it seems settled that some upper peninsula man will get a place on it.

The Round Table

BY RAYMOND MOLEY

The course of prices, production and employment over the past year has caused a good many people to amend their views on the prospects of post-war inflation. The signs pointing toward deflation seem to be increasingly distinct, and if current belief in the inevitability of inflation turns out to be groundless, two men, Dr. Julius Hirsch and George E. Shea, Jr., editor of Barron's Weekly, can say that they told us so some time back.

Barron's has reprinted, under the title, "The Inflation Bugaboo," a series of articles dealing with various aspects of the subject, which they published during the past year. It is impossible to offer a fair summary of the arguments of Hirsch and Shea's comments on them in a short column, but the basis of their view is simple enough.

PREDICTIONS VERIFIED

Dr. Hirsch, an economist or world note who served as price administrator in Germany in the last war and who served under Leon Henderson in the O. P. A., contended a year ago that the "inflationary gap" anticipated by Washington economists would be closed by two forces. In the first place, he said, American production would exceed all government estimates. In the second place, the savings of the American people would be far greater than anticipated. Both predictions now seem more than verified.

Hirsch pointed out that while the production of many forms of durable goods for civilians was being drastically reduced, the net loss in production was being balanced by an enormous expansion in the production of non-durable goods. At the very moment, last year, when pessimists were predicting an American famine in 1944, Hirsch predicted an abundance of food. That has come true. His predictions of huge production in civilian consumer's goods has also proved true.

BONDS ARE SAVINGS

In addition to the Hirsch and Shea articles, the booklet reprints a spirited exchange of views between Hirsch and John W. Scoville of the Chrysler Corporation. Mr. Scoville objects to the Hirsch thesis by pointing out that war bonds are not savings, that they represent a great increase in paper money, that large production will follow a brisk demand for goods and labor and that higher prices and higher wages will be the result. Hirsch answers that the bonds are savings, if the people who hold them feel that they are and treat them as such. It is a fair assumption, he says, that those who hold them will be just as concerned in keeping them for future security, as in converting them into goods immediately after the war.

Dr. Hirsch is not optimistic about a large increase in foreign trade after the war. He regards the promise of full employment in private industry as an illusion. He believes that very considerable unemployment, which governmental spending can only partially alleviate, is inevitable. Since the deterioration of German resistance indicates the sudden and not-too-distant end of the war in Europe, the day of reckoning in domestic economies is getting close. In anticipation of what we shall face, views of these two practical and experienced observers deserve wide attention and study. If their predictions of the year ahead should prove to be as sound as their predictions of a year ago, they will indeed be major prophets.

Well, maybe it's appropriate for tin-horn politicians to hop on the band wagon. And they will!

Wouldn't This Be Cozy?!

Good Morning!

By The Bugler

haven't already done so, it is time to make up your mind whether you intend to be a blood donor when the American Red Cross blood bank clinic comes to Escanaba September 4 to 8, inclusive.

Dunathan

The date of the clinic seems far away, yet unless you make a decision now you probably won't get around to it. Why not decide right now that you will be "fighting blood"? Why not take paper and pencil and write a note to L. J. Jacobs, chairman, Delta County Chapter, American Red Cross, Escanaba, and tell him to put you on the list of blood donors? That is all it takes—just a note telling Chairman Jacobs that you want to be a blood donor. He will send you the necessary card to fill out, and later you will be notified when to appear at the clinic.

If you live in Escanaba and you want to know more about the American Red Cross blood bank and its vital role in the war, attend a meeting to be held at the city hall at 7:30 o'clock Monday evening. There full information on the plasma program and its value in saving the lives of our fighting men will be presented. Meanwhile committees are being organized in all the townships as well as the cities, and folks in the county will have this message brought to them, too. It is a county-wide clinic and every resident of Delta county is invited to offer his "fighting blood."

DEAR BUGLER:

The news that the people of Delta county will have the opportunity to donate blood to the Red Cross Blood bank was certainly welcome! I know that a great number of people have been wishing for the chance to give some of their blood to help save the lives of our wounded boys.

We have all read and heard so much about the life-giving effects of blood plasma, without which many of the injured would not have a chance of recovery. We know of the increasing demand for plasma, and of the insufficient supply, and I feel sure that the short stay of the blood plasma clinic in Escanaba will reap a bumper crop of good, red, Northern Michigan blood!

I don't believe that the people need any sales talk or urging to become blood donors, but there may be some, especially women, who have an unfounded fear of giving their blood. They certainly need not be afraid; it doesn't hurt, and I, for one, felt neither faint, nor weak.

While in Chicago recently I gave a pint of blood to the Red Cross. It was an interesting experience, and I'll be glad to give another pint here in September, when my ten weeks waiting period will be up.

I was surprised to see the great number of women among the blood donors, old and young, all playing the game of "musical chairs" as we advanced along the line toward the actual giving of blood.

We were first met by a Red Cross Gray Lady, were given a card to read, and were assigned to sit at the end of the line of a double row of chairs. Next we were interviewed, and our personal history recorded. As the donors left the line at the other end, we moved up, moving up a couple chairs every couple minutes.

As we advanced, nurses and nurses' aides would thrust a thermometer into our mouths, and another would record our pulse. Farther along the line our blood pressure was taken, and our blood typed. We finally reached the end of the line and were taken into the room where there were many examining tables, and en-

INTO THE PAST

10 Years Ago—1934

Berlin—The German people were called upon by Chancellor Adolf Hitler to follow the patriotic spirit of Paul von Hindenburg in death as they followed and idolized the man in life. Speaking at a memorial service before the German Reichstag the man who assumed the powers of the dead president declared that "honestly and with his whole heart" the old warrior desired peace for his people. He asked of Almighty God: "May be especially, in his mercy, let us find the right way of securing the boon of peace for our people to shelter it from the misfortune of war."

20 Years Ago—1924

Sheriff Joseph F. Carney and his deputies came back from Schaffer with the largest distilling apparatus confiscated in Delta county since prohibition became effective in Michigan.

each a blood donor giving his blood. Each nurse tended to two patients. They were very efficient, quick, and gentle.

The actual giving of the blood took only about five minutes. I fully expected to get weak, but didn't notice any difference at all. After lying there for a few minutes, our nurse escorted us to another room where refreshments were given to the donors. We had our choice of tea, coffee, cocoa, milk, or coke, and were given some water to eat. We were given a blood donor's pin to wear. We could stay there as long as wished to recuperate.

I was very interested in the different types of people who were blood donors. Just ahead of me was a Chicago boy who looked very healthy, but was probably 4-F for some reason—but he was certainly doing his part here at home! This was his 12th donation of blood! So, we needn't worry about a pint of blood!

In the line were grandmothers, mothers, wives and sweethearts of servicemen; business men, and laboring men, and even boys in uniform were there to give their blood! Who knows, they might get their own blood back when they badly need it.

We at home should do all we can to make sure the boys have enough plasma when they need it. Sincerely,

Mrs. Clinton E. Groos.

DEAR MRS. GROOS—The Bugler feels certain that the boys in service would back him in saying "Thank you" for your fine letter. Since this is the first time locally that folks will have the opportunity to become blood donors, there may be, as you say, some who may hesitate. Your letter is reassuring.

The story of the origin of the Red Cross blood donor project has been told many times. Organized in January, 1941, at the request of the Surgeons General of the Army and Navy, it now has 35 fixed blood donor centers and 65 mobile units regularly engaged in procuring blood from volunteers.

By the end of 1943 approximately 5,700,000 pints had been collected, and the Red Cross is on its way towards the 5,000,000 additional pints of "fighting blood" requested for this year. That means one donor every two seconds of every workday throughout the year.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Wendell Willkie has written an article for Collier's discussing aspects of the Republican and Democratic platforms. Richard C. Patterson Jr., who was toastmaster last week at the dinner to Dr. H. H. Kung, will make Washington news soon. The Truman Committee will meet on Thursday to consider the Chairman's resignation. They probably will urge Sen. Truman to remain as Chairman. Ex-Senator George Norris is expected to become head of the new Citizens National Political Action Committee. Norris, who with LaGuardia in the last campaign organized a Committee for Roosevelt, will accept unless his health prevents him.

DOROTHY GISH, in the Stock Club last night, told of the early days of her career when, for the first time, she and her sister, Lillian, suddenly became aware of the fact that they were famous. The child-stars found themselves followed by a large crowd of people who had recognized them on Fifth Avenue. They rushed home to their mother and reported this to her. The wise Mrs. Gish, who didn't want her daughters to be spoiled, listened to the youngsters, and then told them: "So what if the crowds follow you on the streets? Remember this—the same thing would happen if you'd have walked down Fifth Avenue with rings in your nose."

BOAKE CARTER has grown a beard for religious reasons. Because of its truck ad, which was illustrated with a truck on which was a beer sign, the Saturday Evening Post has been deluged with advertising orders from beer and liquor companies. The magazine, whose policy it has been never to accept any such ads, is assuring these companies that the ad was a mistake and would not be repeated. Leo Cherne, head of Research Institute of America and author of "The Rest of Your Life," has been rushed to the Park East Hospital. There's still a lot of Roosevelt money in town at odds of 3 to 1.

JUSTICE William O. Douglas, who was marked by the President as an acceptable running-mate, wasn't aware of what was happening at the Democratic convention. At convention time Douglas and two friends, Jim Donald and Alfred Hobson of the RFC, were on a pack-horse trip at Minam Lake, so deep in the timbered fastness of the Wallowa Mountains that radio reception was impossible. Dorothy Parker has been informed that her husband, Alan Campbell, was promoted to captain. He's in France now. Capt. Campbell, 40 or 41, enlisted as a private in the Marine Corps, the submarine hero with 4 decorations, will bring good news soon.

BEFORE Billy Conn left for England, he sat in Lindy's with his former Pittsburgh neighbor, Oscar Levant. Conn confessed that he knows little about music or musicians. "Now take a man like Toscanini," said Conn. "He leads an orchestra. So what's the difference between Toscanini and Tommy Dorsey?" "One difference is," Levant told him, "Toscanini doesn't play the trombone."

PAT "HONEYCHIL" Wilder, the former Hollywood actress who was stranded for a time in Germany at the outbreak of war, is now trying to get to the Argentine to rejoin her husband there. Miss Wilder, who came up from Georgia to New York, made good on the Bob Hope radio show and then got a film contract, was walking on Fifth Avenue yesterday. She passed the Hudson Success School and decided to walk in. She studied the cards, "How To Be a Success." But when a receptionist invited her to enroll in the school, Honeychil put her jewels and walked out explaining, "To me that's an insult."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—For more than a quarter of a century, Arkansas has never been without a member of the Caraway family in Congress. Tough, tenacious Senator Thaddeus Caraway, who began his Congressional career in 1913, was the first man to squeeze a relief project out of Herbert Hoover in the drought-depression days of the Arkansas Ozarks. From Thaddeus's tongue, vitriol dripped on Republican brows with the regularity of water off of a stalactite. His colleagues feared him—even the equally tough Hiram Johnson, with whom Thaddeus once rowed so bitterly over a beveled mirror that the two men never spoke from that day until Thaddeus died in 1931.

After his death, homey Hattie Caraway, his wife, suddenly found herself elevated by the appreciative people of Arkansas into the Senate seat of her husband. And surprisingly, there she stayed. Other women, after being given honorary, interim appointments to the Senate, stayed for only a few weeks or days.

But hard-working, homebody Hattie Caraway stuck to her Senate knitting, took care of her constituents, kept her mouth shut, voted for every Roosevelt measure straight across the board, and has succeeded in remaining in the United States Senate for thirteen long and stormy years.

Unobtrusive, participating in no debates, Hattie Caraway nevertheless was a respected, revered member of the Senate. In that turbulent, trouble-ridden chamber, where a person's good points or bad quickly shine through the gloss, she held her own.

Then, the other day, in a hotly contested Arkansas primary, she was defeated.

—MONEY SPENT BY OPPONENTS—
Hattie Caraway's Senate colleagues knew little about that defeat—except that she ran last—until George Shillito, investigator for the Senate Campaign Expenditures Committee, took a train from Arkansas back to Washington.

Appearing the other day before Rhode Island's Democratic Senator Theodore Green, Delaware's Democratic Senator James Tunnell, and Michigan's Republican Senator Homer Ferguson, investigator Shillito unfolded the Arkansas election story.

Perhaps more money has been spent to secure Mrs. Caraway's coveted seat in the United States Senate than Herbert Hoover permitted for the relief of the Arkansas Ozarks at the time Thaddeus Caraway gouged it out of him.

Colonel T. H. Barton, wealthy oil man, toured the State with a 40-person opera company from Station WSM, Nashville, reported to have cost him a thousand dollars a night. In addition, routin'-tootin' "In-ole Mack" James McKrell toured the State with the "Bible Lovers' Revival," most popular radio feature in Little Rock. All of these people were on the colonel's payroll. Some estimates have it that he spent around a quarter of a million. Investigator Shillito told the Senate committee that he probably spent around $200,000.

Next highest campaign spender was brilliant Rhodes scholar Congressman Bill Fulbright, wealthy in his own right and married to a wealthy wife. He paid clerks and workers in his headquarters up to one hundred dollars a week, plus expenses; told investigator Shillito that his friends also had spent money from their own pockets for newspaper ads. Fulbright's expenses were estimated at around $100,000 far over the $25,000 limit fixed by the State.

Also over $25,000, according to Shillito, were the campaign expenses of Governor Homer Adkins.

Trailing far behind came Mrs. Caraway, who for thirteen years had ridden capital street cars, who had raised three sons—one now dead, two in the Army. Mrs. Caraway spent the lowest amount, a scant $15,000. She also ran last in the race.

Taking her defeat philosophically, she told friends:

"I established another first. I was the first candidate in Arkansas who failed to carry one county."

—UP TO THE SENATE—

However, the three Senators listening to closed-door evidence before the Campaign Expenditures Committee, were not so philosophical. Remarked Michigan's fair-minded Republican Ferguson:

"We cannot permit anyone to purchase a seat in the United States Senate."

Millionaire Senator Green of Rhode Island, his Democratic colleague, emphatically agreed. Said he: "Just because a candidate has great funds at his disposal, is no criterion for election to the Senate."

Committee members had in mind the stand taken by their colleagues in 1922 when Teddy Roosevelt's former Secretary of the Navy, Truman Newberry, who had been elected to the Senate from Michigan, was refused a seat because he spent around $100,000. They also remembered the quarter of a million dollar expenditure of Philadelphia boss William Vare, who was elected to the Senate in 1926 after running in the primary against George Wharton Pepper, but was later unseated for excessive campaign expenditures.

In more recent years, the Senate has looked the other way at some election campaigns. In Maryland, Completion of it for the opening of the 1945 Great Lakes shipping season is now planned.

The new structure is part of the Canadian National Railways' construction program to serve the new Steep Rock lake iron mine which will soon come into production.

The dock occupies the site of the old blast furnace of the former Atikokan Iron company, an almost forgotten chapter of the iron industry story in this part of Ontario.

Designed especially to load lake boats, the dock will be pier type of steel-reinforced concrete construction, 600 feet long and 84 feet high. It will have 50 pockets on each side, each capable of holding 300 long tons of ore, giving the dock a total storage capacity of 30,000 long tons.

Height of the structure is comparable with that of the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railway ore dock at Marquette, the highest of the American ore loading docks.

Individual electrically operated hoists equipped with special flat wire rope, a system developed through long experience at the American docks, will be installed to raise the ore spouts. Friction brakes controlled by dock attendants will be used to lower the spouts.

The new dock is being built primarily for the Steep Rock iron mine located near Atikokan, 150 miles west of Port Arthur. Contractors are well advanced with construction of a mine spur to connect the mine with the main line of the Canadian National railway at Atikokan. Rails have been laid on part of the spur and completion of the grade is expected next month.

Should ore be produced by the mine this fall, the ore will be shipped by rail temporarily to one of the docks at Superior, Wis., over the Canadian National and its affiliated Duluth, Winnipeg and Pacific railroad in Minnesota.

Postwar Employment For Veterans Problem Here

What are the employment prospects in Delta county for the men and women now in service of the armed forces of our country when they come home after the war?

That is the No. 1 problem on the local postwar planning calendar, and one over which there is the greatest concern among civic and business leaders of the communities in Delta county. Jobs for veterans is the communities' biggest headache and its most urgent responsibility.

It is generally agreed that this problem of postwar employment for veterans must be met: 1 — With opportunities for jobs in private industry; 2 — With a backlog of public works projects in the event there are an insufficient number of jobs in private employment.

Providing Jobs Now

Realistically facing the future in Delta county, it seems doubtful that local industry will be able to take up all the slack and provide jobs for all the veterans seeking employment. That it will attempt to do so is certain, for it is already doing that with those veterans who have been discharged from service to return to their homes. But what postwar conditions will bring in business and industry cannot be fully foreseen. Plans now for postwar expansion may never be realized.

There will be certain job openings if industry continues to operate in any volume. Some men now employed in industry are in the older-age group and may be expected to retire. Most of the women who are now in local wartime industrial jobs, replacing men, will also return to house and home. And all veterans who want their old jobs back when they return will find those jobs open to them.

Farming Is Suggested

The veteran who left a farm to enter service may be expected to return to the farm. This trend is being encouraged and, where it is believed necessary, the veteran will find a committee under the direction of the county agricultural agent ready and willing to assist him. The possibilities of opening up now inoperative farms are being studied, together with the attendant problem of financing.

The prospect of "father-son" farming is also being studied. It is known that where conditions are right and the farm acreage is large enough, the veteran and his family, if he has one, can more effectively operate the farm in cooperation with his father to their mutual benefit.

But in both industry and agriculture there is much to be done to have readily available the information which will be needed to assure rapid job placement and a coordinated employment program. The answer to the problem depends on economic factors not readily foreseeable, but the will to work out the answers is here.

Public Works Proposed

Greater public emphasis has been placed on public works projects than on jobs in private employment. A greater public interest in a comprehensive survey to determine postwar employment prospects in private industry would bring vitally needed information.

Public works projects have been planned and are being planned for the postwar period. The cities, townships, school districts, the county, state and nation are working toward a goal of postwar project plans completed and ready to go when the employment need is here.

Unfortunately, the public has come to accept postwar planning as the answer to the postwar need for jobs. At best such projects can provide only temporary employment. Certainly the veteran will not want to make a career of relief work.

But if industry is unable to supply postwar jobs, public works projects are the only answer.

Old Orchard Farm

Farmers Usually Do Too Much Worrying

Farmers, as a class, are usually confirmed pessimists. The elements over which they have no control and which so much to either the success or failure of their business, combine to make them what they are. It's either too hot or too cold; to dry or too wet—the elements, with which every farmer gambles, every season from planting time to harvest never seem to be just right. And Old Orchard's manager has found that he is getting so he can shed as large and as honest crocodile tears and look through as deeply clouded glasses as the best of them—and usually the things he worries about most, just don't happen.

No Record Crop

Old Orchard's manager and the farm crew were fully convinced that the oats crop of this season, due to extremely hot and dry weather when the grain was heading, would prove just about a complete failure. But when Earl Smith's combine got into action on the home place oats field last week, the actual picture brightened considerably. It's true, it wasn't a record breaking crop, but Old Orchard has a lot more oats safely in the granary than the manager and the crew ever expected to have this season.

The total yield of oats from 14 acres was 728 bushels, or 52 bushels per acre. While yields up to 80 bushels per acre have been recorded at Old Orchard, in favorable years, a yield of 52 bushels isn't a complete failure, by any means. And there's still a patch of four acres, over on the Tom Jones place, still to be combined, that will add materially to the total in the granary for livestock feeding. So, after all, all of the wailing and tears that preceded the harvest, were, at least, more than a little premature and hardly justified by the final result.

Old Orchard's manager is just another farmer who cried too soon.

Could Use More Rain

While another soaking rain could be used most any time now both corn and potato crops, out at the Daily Press experimental farm in Flat Rock, are looking fine and growing vigorously. The patch of oats over on the Jones place, was sowed two weeks later than the same crop on the home field, so the last of the oats will probably go in the granary this week and then until potato digging and corn husking time, the principal important job will be confined to potato spraying. But at this season of the year there are always a lot of odd jobs that need attention. All of the board fences about the barnyard and house must be whitewashed and if time can be found most of the farm buildings need a coat of paint. Temporary pasture fences will also be needed, as soon as the straw has been removed from the oats fields that have been combined. So there will be little idle time for the farm crew—proof of the old saying that a farmer's work is never finished. Maybe that's the reason most of them are pessimists.

Will Buy Full Herd

Old Orchard's manager has just about decided that instead of gradually establishing a milking Shorthorns as the principal cattle herd at the farm, he will make the change in one full swoop this fall. He now knows where he can purchase a sufficient number of mature registered cows and heifers, to fill Old Orchard's stable and that is the step he will probably take. Such a course will mean that Old Orchard will hold an auction sale in early fall, to dispose of his herd of 15 head of Jersey and Guernsey cows, heifers and heifer calves. In this herd there will be both registered and grade cows, heifers and calves and will include cows that held high places in the old Delta County Milk Testing Association, together with the offspring from these animals. Every animal in the present herd is a farm pet and it's going to pull pretty hard at the heart strings when Janey, Nellie, Annabelle, Lulubelle, Emily and Phyllis, and all the rest, go to the auction block, but in the interest of constructive experimentation a new breed of cattle is to be brought in and the old farm favorites must move out, to make room for the newcomers.

JAP SUBMARINE COMING AUG. 20

Japan's unsuccessful secret weapon, the captured two-man suicide submarine which participated in the attack on Pearl Harbor, now on a nation-wide fundraising tour for Bundles for America, Inc., will be exhibited in Escanaba at Ludington and 11th street from noon to 10 p. m. Sunday, August 20.

Bundles for America, Inc. is a home front relief organization operating under License D-13 issued by the President's War Relief Control Board and participates in relief programs with Army and Navy Relief Societies, the United Seamen's Service and the Seamen's Church Institute, caring for families of servicemen as well as servicemen within our own borders.

The United States Navy prepared the captured submarine for this tour by cutting portholes along each side and attaching steps and catwalks so that the public might view the interior. For this privilege a nominal admission is charged. Funds thus secured go to further the Bundles for America, Inc., relief program.

During the two years of its existence, Bundles for America has provided more than 1,000,000 kit bags for our Armed Forces and established over 4,000 day rooms and canteens. More than 79,000 regular volunteer workers are in daily attendance at their workshops and offices in 592 active branches and units in 38 states and hundreds of thousands of other volunteers contribute their services one or more days each week.

AMERICANS FATTENING UP

Department of Agriculture estimates that despite war requirements civilians in the U. S. in 1945 consumed 5 per cent to 7 per cent more food than in the pre-war average 1935-39 and only about 2 per cent less than in 1942.

New York—The pinch of wartime scarcities is making Mrs. America an inveterate barterer. Housewives who once had quite a time keeping within the budget have learned to strike shrewd bargains at swap shops, trading egg beaters for diapers, heating pads for alarm clocks and baby buggies for snow suits.

Three trade-in marts are flourishing here under auspices of the Manhattan Civilian Defense Volunteer Office. The first of these put out its open for swapping sign less than a year ago and already has made more than 19,000 exchange transactions.

WE, the WOMEN

BY RUTH MILETT

She is through school and the boy she plans to marry some day is overseas, so she is out job hunting. She doesn't know what kind of job she wants. She isn't trained for anything special, so she'll just take whatever she is offered—providing the hours and pay are all right.

She isn't giving it any real thought, though. After all, she is just marking time, just trying to kill the months or years until her young man comes home and marries her. But she shouldn't be so haphazard in her job hunting. Not in these times.

For all she knows she may have to support herself for years, and not always in years when jobs are easy for an untrained, not too interested person to track down.

Her young man may not come back, or he may come back disabled so that he can't assume the whole responsibility for a family's support. And even if her young man comes back sound of body, it may be a while before he can get started in his chosen work or profession. It may be that his wife will have to earn a pay check in order to give them a start.

Prepare For Future

So that girl—and there are thousands like her—should put some thought into the job hunting she is doing now. They should all try to figure out just what kind of work will give their talents and abilities the best chance. And if they need a little special training it would be worth while to get it before they start to work.

Even though they have to borrow the money to pay for it. Or they should try to get special training in a night course—if they have to take a mediocre job without any future to it.

The trouble is, they see the war's end as the end of their working days. And since jobs are easy to get now they take whatever is available, without a worry about the future. But the post-war world may not be as easy a place as they like to dream it will be. Now is the time for them to be preparing themselves so that they can get by even if it proves to be tough going.

Delta Hardware Adopts Employees' Pension Program

A complete retirement annuity and pension plan has been adopted by the Delta Hardware company effective July 20th. All employees who have had three years of service are eligible to participate and most of the eligible employees have already applied for admission into the plan.

The new pension plan establishes a trust whose funds are acquired through small savings of the employees and the liberal contributions made by the company plus earnings of the combined funds in sound investments. The trust is underwritten by the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance company and was designed by Leslie C. Hatcher and John W. Chandler of Detroit in consultation with the company's officers.

The pension plan provides liberal monthly pensions at retirement age with many additional protection features and also provides life insurance for insurable employees. A few months ago the company issued to its employees group life, accident and sickness insurance policies. With this group insurance and federal social security benefits, the new pension plan should in a large measure free the company's employees from fear of the future.

Keep Ration Book Cover To Qualify For New A Stamps

The Office of Price Administration yesterday advised motorists to retain the cover of their present basic gasoline ration book when their last No. 12 stamp has been used.

The cover of the present books will have to be presented to the registrar when application is made next month for a renewal of the basic ration. Motorists who have lost their ration books covers will not be able to get their renewals at the public school registration sites and will be required to make special applications, involving new proof of their right to the basic rations.

Sanity Versus Terror

In "The French Revolution" Thomas Carlyle again and again insists on the background of sanity and normality against which the drama of the madness of the Terror was played. We of today are in a much better position to understand what Carlyle meant than were the people of Carlyle's day, when the book was published in 1836. The nineteenth century was a period of relative peace; it was hard for people to realize that the wholesale executions by the guillotine represented a mere incident, that life in Paris went on all the time with fair regularity.

While batches of citizens, men, women and children, were being beheaded to the number of some 80 each day—a record that matches most of the things charged against the Nazis of today—there were 23 theaters going full blast in Paris, giving daily performances and many matinees. People were patronizing those theatres; sometimes on their way to the theatre they met the death carts that were taking citizens to execution whose crime was that they had been born as aristocrats.

And the theaters represent only one sign of the background of normality in the Paris during the Reign of Terror. People were going to their work daily much as usual; shop keepers swept out their stores in the morning and then waited on customers; women prepared meals on time for their husbands coming home from work; citizens strolled under the chestnut trees along the Seine in the cool of the evening at the very moment when 80 heads were dropping into the basket.

Carlyle lets off his readers on none of the horror and the terror, but he always insists on keeping the anarchy and violence and madness in perspective. The mass of Frenchmen were sane, and that fact was of course the only salvation of France in the end.

We of today are prone to forget this central fact of the essential sanity of the masses of men. Terrible things have been happening on our globe the past five years, and we are likely to jump to the conclusion that the masses of men have gone mad. The chances are that normality is far stronger than abnormality in the various places where wholesale crimes have been committed; at least we hardly have a choice but to pin our faith to the normality of average people if we expect civilization to recover.

The crimes and explosions are publicized, and as a result they are given an emphasis they do not deserve. For a century and a half now the world has gasped at the horrors of the Reign of Terror, until the readers of the history of the time get the impression that life was made up of horror. Those readers do not see the people nightly filling the 23 theaters of Paris and daily going about their normal work in a normal way.

Yet we know that during the blitz in 1940 the theaters of London were open and doing business, and on the whole normal life of London was more in evidence than the terror from the skies. And that has been true all over the world—in Russia, in the Balkans, in China, in France. The newspapers carried the story, during the invasion of Normandy, of French peasants calmly plowing their fields, with the shells of the barrage whistling over them. It is always more difficult for the imagination to keep hold of scenes of calm normality than of death and destruction and horror.

In his novel, "The Old Wives' Tale," Arnold Bennett describes life in Paris during the siege of 1870. The mass of the people of Paris did not feel that a siege was in progress. They behaved as normal people always do in such situations. That picture of 23 Paris theaters keeping going in the usual way during the Reign of Terror is worth keeping in mind to bolster one's faith in the eventual triumph of sanity in our own mad world.

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE
CASE D-218: Mabel E., aged 19, recently attempted suicide.

"I have nothing to live for," she protested tearfully. "I'm not beautiful and nobody loves me."

"I don't have friends and good times the way other girls do. And no boy has ever asked me for a date."

"What's the use of living if you cannot have good times and be liked?"

Diagnosis

To judge from the large number of letters I receive from people who feel like Mabel, I am glad my formula for this column includes one case per week on personality development.

Personality is the sum total of hundreds or thousands of traits. Some are good and some are bad. We might call them MERITS and DEMERITS.

You are not fixed or preordained at birth as regards your personality and charm.

If you have some physical defects which you deem objectionable, try to eliminate them insofar as modern surgery or dentistry will permit.

But after you straighten your crossed eye, or submit to plastic surgery for nose or chin or birthmarks, you still may not be popular, for charm is something far different from physical beauty.

Many a good looking girl has come to me in tears because she didn't have friends or dates.

On the other hand, many of our most popular girls in college are not more than average in physical beauty. Some of them have freckles or big noses, prominent noses, or other physical characteristics that many of you complain of.

Popularity Like Piano Playing

Your personal popularity is much like musical skill. It is acquired by going through the proper motions.

Wouldn't it be silly for a girl to attempt suicide because she thought she couldn't learn to play the piano well, owing to her freckles, or her prominent nose or large mouth?

It is just about as foolish as regards her melancholy over lack of friends and social popularity.

To be liked among your associates, it is well to be as accomplished and good looking as possible. But the primary purpose of gaining personal prestige is simply that it will add that much more weight to the tactfully phrased compliments which you pay to your companions.

A beauty contest winner who is self-centered and egotistical, cannot become as popular as the homely girl who develops charm through consideration for her companions and honest praise for their many good traits.

Compliments Breed Friendships

A compliment is an honest statement of praise for some virtue that merits commendation. It is as objective as a surgeon's scalpel, and can be used even on your enemies without the slightest insincerity.

Learn to pay compliments liberally. Develop conversational skill. Take an interest in important issues in life as the church.

And diligently cultivate the 50 MERITS while eliminating the 50 DEMERITS listed in my "Test for the Girl Friend." Send a 3c stamped envelope, plus a dime, for your copy of this blueprint for popular girlhood!

Early Escanaba Days

Boosters Tried to Bring Soo Line Here

BY JOHN P. NORTON

Since the memory of Escanaba's oldest residents runneth not to the contrary, it has been whispered along Ludington street and Tilden avenue and proclaimed, at times, in public places, that the skull-duggery of early businessmen robbed Escanaba of being made the Lake Michigan terminus of the Soo Line.

For generations it has been charged in Escanaba that Gladstone came into existence some sixty years ago only because those who represented Escanaba's interests in the endeavor to induce the promoters of the railroad, now known as the Soo Line, to construct the line by way of this port, sold their town down the river, to some unnamed and highly mysterious interest. There have been those who named names and openly reported the alleged proceedings of early day public meetings, when leading citizens of the village were charged with opposing the entrance of a new railroad, because it would "increase population, bring in new merchants and provide ruinous competition for the merchants already established here.

Charges Proved False

The files of the Iron Port, early Escanaba newspaper, prove those charges to wholly false and without the slightest foundation of fact. Careful reading of those files prove that Gladstone came into existence, not because of ulterior motives on the part of early Escanaba citizens, but in spite of an earnest and a prolonged effort by public spirited citizens to induce builders of the Soo Line to make Escanaba a division point on the projected railroad.

It is true that a series of meetings, that marked the mid-winter season of 1883-84, when interest in bringing the new railroad to this point was raised to fever pitch, did not result in sending the hoped for large committee of citizens to Minneapolis and St. Paul, to extend this town's formal invitation to lay before the railroad builders the outstanding advantages offered here. Col. John C. VanDuzer, editor and publisher of the Iron Port, was the sole member of that citizens' committee and those who remember that early editor know that he faithfully and conscientiously represented Escanaba's interests on that mission. The fact that Col. VanDuzer was actually the sole member of that committee, gives the lie to frequently circulated reports that leading merchants of the town constituted that committee and permitted their selfish interests to interfere with their public duty to their community.

The first public meeting, to bring the advantages of Escanaba to the attention of the builders of the new railroad, was held at McKenna's hall on Saturday evening, Jan. 5, 1884. The meeting was presided over by Col. VanDuzer, with Charles H. Scott, secretary. The meeting named a committee of five, to prepare a formal brief of Escanaba's claims for recognition and J. A. Wallace, John Semer, John Power, L. D. McKenna and Col. VanDuzer were appointed members of that committee.

Outlines Escanaba's Advantages

The Port's editor outlined Escanaba's claims in this important matter as follows: "There are several plans for railroads from the west across Wisconsin and through the peninsula to a connection with the Canadian system. One of these plans is so far advanced that it gives definite promise. Gen. Washburn and his associates, organized as the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie and Atlantic company, will build a road to the Sault and will touch the waters of Green Bay at some point. One hundred miles of the road from Minneapolis eastward is under contract and the route thence to the Brule river, near Florence, may be considered as fixed. Between Florence and the Sault the route is, as yet, undetermined, but surveying parties are in the field and their routes, so far, leaves us at the south, crossing the track of the North-Western between Day's River and Lathrop. The question for us is this: Can we not show to this company good and sufficient reasons for making our harbor its lake shipping point? If we can it will be equivalent to doubling the business of the place. It will involve the erection of structures for the handling of grain and lumber eastward and equal and valuable to the value of the place as the plant of the North-Western company for the handling of iron ore, without reducing in any degree the value of that plant. Is it worth an effort, a strenuous effort and are we sufficiently alive to our own interests to make such an effort?"

Members of the citizens' committee, appointed at the first public session, formally organized on Jan. 9, '84 with Col. VanDuzer as chairman and Atty. John Power, as secretary. Upon the motion of Mr. Power, a subcommittee of three members, consisting of the chairman, W. J. Wallace and John Semer, was named to secure maps, charts and statistics, that would be incorporated in the brief, incorporating Escanaba's advantages. It was agreed that the report of the sub-committee and the committee of the whole should be submitted at a public mass meeting, to be held at McKenna's hall on the evening of Jan. 26, when it would be recommended that a delegation of two or more citizens be sent to Minneapolis and St. Paul, to present Escanaba's case to the railroad builders.

When the final mass meeting was held on Jan. 26, the attendance of the solid property owners of the town was not encouraging, but a large number of citizens displayed their interest by their presence, including the Port's editor to say: "It was a good meeting, for all of that, and those who were there showed by their action that they were in earnest—that to the extent of their ability they would help build a city on Sand Point."

Sent Delegation

The meeting accepted the reports prepared by the committee and Mayor Tracy, of the then infant village headed a committee to raise funds to send a committee of two members to the Twin Cities. The Port reported that the necessary funds were raised within two hours on the following day, but there were an unexpected delay. In the departure of the town's representatives to perform their mission it was not until the issue of March 1, 1884 that Col. VanDuzer as a member of the committee made a report to his constituents as follows: "The undersigned, one of the persons selected to visit Minneapolis and lay before the managers and promoters of the plan for a railroad between that city and Sault Ste. Marie, the advantages of Escanaba as a point at which to make connection with the great water route, begs leave to report that he performed that duty, none of the gentlemen associated with him being able to accompany him, by visiting Minneapolis during the week ending Feb. 25: That he was cordially received and respectfully and patiently listened to by the gentlemen in charge of the enterprise mentioned, and the importance of a good port on the water fully and freely admitted; That the gentlemen referred to had some previous knowledge of the advantages of our city as such a port and contemplated further investigation before finally deciding upon the route of their road, and, That your representative was by them authorized to say to you that the route of the Minneapolis, Sault Ste. Marie and Atlantic railroad, east of the line of the Wisconsin Central railroad, was, as yet, entirely undecided and would so remain until further and extensive work of surveying could be accomplished, which work will be undertaken as soon the spring is far enough advanced to permit it; That your city will be visited and that, finally, such route will be adopted as shall seem to them to promise the best results in business for the road."

"The gentlemen expressed themselves as much gratified by the action taken by the citizens of Escanaba and favorably impressed toward the place and your representative is fully convinced that the road will be built to Escanaba, either by its main line, should that cross the state of Wisconsin far enough south to make it practical, or by a branch, if the

There followed, through the succeeding months, issue after issue of the Iron Port in which no mention was made of the Soo Line's building plans. Finally an inconspicuous item appeared in the Port, announcing that a new town to be called "Gladstone" was to become the Lake Michigan terminus of the road. In later issues the expressed disappointment of the Port's editor was conspicuously keen and fervent, for he had failed his town as a prophet and his limitless ambition for Escanaba's future was severely shocked.

At least those yellowing files of Escanaba's first newspaper make it certain that Gladstone came into existence not because of anything that Escanaba did or failed to do, but because Gladstone possessed advantages in her own right that won recognition from the railroad builders.

REPAIR NOTICES

Property Owners To Be Notified This Week To Improve Walks

With the partial completion of a sidewalk survey by city police, local property owners whose walks are in need of repair, will begin receiving notices to that effect this week, according to H. J. Henrickson, acting city manager.

The survey was started about two weeks ago, following receipt of several complaints by the acting city manager regarding the condition of walks in various sections of the business and residential districts. Initial notices will be sent out to property holders on Delta avenue.

"There has been some misconception regarding improvement of the sidewalks," Henrickson said yesterday. It has been called to attention that residents believe the city will go ahead with the improvement program.

"City employees will do the work only in the event that property owners do not make necessary improvements on walks in front of their homes. They will be allotted a definite period of time to make these repairs and then if it is not done, the city will do the work and spread the cost of it on the tax roll. In the event this procedure is followed there will be an extra charge made for additional expenses incurred by the city in undertaking the work."

Communication

RAPS LIFE GUARDS

Gladstone, Michigan
August 4, 1944

Escanaba Daily Press, Gladstone Branch, Gladstone, Michigan. Gentlemen:

After witnessing the manner in which our beach house and other bathing facilities are being managed, if one can call it that, would appreciate if the following communication could be published in the Daily Press:

We think Mr. Frasher is doing a fine job as recreation director for the city of Gladstone and this communication is by no means a reflection on his methods or management. The chief objection is the apparent lack of cooperation on the part of the life guard and his assistants. There doesn't seem to be any sign of order at the beach. If a girl or boy decides to throw mud in another child's hair or eyes, no one makes even an attempt to stop them. Gradually it becomes a mud slinging contest, nothing barred. At times a life guard or two will sit up on the tower, taking in the sights, more or less. If someone shouted for help near the raft, for instance, no doubt that person would drown by the time the boat arrived. If the call were heard, it seems to this reader if a boat could be used to patrol the area from raft to raft, there would be much better protection for the swimmers. At times even the best swimmers are seized with cramps.

We have one of the finest beach houses and beach equipment north of Milwaukee but they are being sadly neglected. The inside of the building should be gone over at least once a week. Sanitation, especially in a building of this sort is very important. This is not being typed just to have an axe to grind but it is about time our life guards and their assistants did something besides playing at the beach.

Dewey Is Not At Ease At Press Conferences

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

St. Louis—The more you observe candidate Dewey the more you are struck by two qualities—his self-discipline and his sensitivity. Although he tries hard at his press conferences he does not succeed in seeming at ease. It is a conscious effort, every moment of it, and you can see the strain.

Childs

Dewey is the type of person who is disturbed by a lack of order. He wants to keep the questions and answers under his control. Questions that seem unfriendly put a chip on his shoulder. He is defensive.

Yet on occasion he achieves the light touch. Something happened just before he left New York for his trip to St. Louis which illustrates his capacity for a comeback.

Dewey's Hair Shirt
Because of the fact behind the facts, Warren Moscow, the New York Times Albany correspondent, has been a kind of hair shirt to Dewey. The two engage in frequent verbal sparring matches at press conferences. In a farewell bout with photographers before he left New York, Dewey posed for pictures in his suite at the Roosevelt Hotel with a big cake which the management of the hotel had presented him. As the photographers were doing their work, Moscow said: "I wonder how that will fit under a pullman pillow, governor?"

"Well, it depends on how light your head is, Warren," Dewey replied without a moment's hesitation.

How Dewey will react to crowds, and how the crowd will react to him, is a question this trip has left unanswered. The Dewey party paraded through three communities, but since it was carefully announced in advance that there would be no speeches, people had no strong inducement to come out.

At the station in Pittsburgh, a small crowd had come out to welcome the governor with placards printed for the occasion. Obviously the Republican organization had been at work.

When he returned to his train that evening the curious stood on the curb in considerable numbers, although never in sufficiently large forces to require the precaution on the ropes the police had put up. The stores are open in downtown Pittsburgh on Monday evening until 9 o'clock, and for the most part the throng seemed to be made up of shoppers and clerks. There was some booing and some cries for Roosevelt mingled with applause.

Welcomed to Springfield
At Springfield, Ill., a sizable crowd at the station and a big crowd at the executive mansion showed real enthusiasm in spite of the heat. Springfield is a Republican stronghold, and here was the hero on whom these Republicans were counting to knock out the champ.

The contrast with St. Louis was painful. Our arrival here was, of course, early. But it was obvious the Republican organization had done nothing to prepare a welcome for the candidate. The little group at Union Station that confronted Dewey, as he stepped out onto the back platform with Mrs. Dewey and Governor and Mrs. Donnell of Missouri, was made up of people who happened to be there. The line of cars moved slowly from the station to the Statler Hotel through almost empty streets.

While this is perhaps not a real test, it is nevertheless clear that there is little curiosity about Dewey, the man. He has not begun to capture the public imagination.

Perhaps he never will. Conceivably he could be elected without any dramatic projection of a personality, such as characterized Wendell Willkie's crusade. Dewey's campaign managers look at all this pretty objectively. Their kind of campaign doesn't call for emotionalism. How much crowds mean is debatable anyway. Political observers always recall the masses who turned out to see Al Smith in 1928. They deceived Smith himself. When Willkie came to St. Louis in the course of his campaign four years ago, it looked as though the whole city had turned out.

Sensitive, self-disciplined candidate Dewey may learn crowd mastery in the coming weeks. But if he has his own way, and he usually does, he will follow the cool, detached pattern of the governors' meeting.

Roy Anderson, commander of the American Legion Post, said yesterday that the proposed honor roll for Schoolcraft county will be completed in about three weeks.

The board will be constructed by the Bud Malloy Sign Co., of Manistique on the plot between the First National Bank Building and the Brault building. It will be a panel arrangement so sections can be added if they should become necessary. Provision on the original board is being made for 1,200 names.

Anderson said that if materials could be obtained, the board would be lighted. The ground around the board will be landscaped if a landscape architect can be obtained, he added.

The Ladies' Auxiliary is undertaking the collection of the names of all men who have entered service in this war. Mrs. Anton Weber, president of the Legion Auxiliary urges all persons knowing of men who enlisted to forward their names either to her, Mrs. Anton Weber, 220 South Maple street, or to Mrs. Grace McLaughlin on Range street.

A gold star will indicate those who have been killed in action and some indication will be made to distinguish the men who have served but been discharged from those still in service, Anderson said.

All America Baseball Game Today Opens Drive For Memorial Fund

PICK OF YOUNG PLAYERS MEET

Mel Ott And Connie Mack Direct Activities Of Two Teams

New York, Aug. 5 (AP)—D drive for funds with which to build living memorials for the country's heroes of World War II gets underway in the Polo Grounds tomorrow with a baseball game in which pre-draft players from east of the Mississippi River will play a similar team from the west.

Fourteen newspapers east of the river selected the outstanding young player in their districts and the athletes were brought to New York by Esquire magazine, which is underwriting the event, along with the Blue Network. The western squad, also of 14, was chosen similarly.

Mel Ott, manager of the New York Giants, will guide the westerners while Connie Mack, boss of the Philadelphia Athletics will do the master-minding for the easterners. During the past week, Carl Hubbell of the Giants and Ira Thomas of the A's, have been in charge of the rehearsals in the Polo Grounds.

Ask Living Memorial. All net profits of the 3 p. m. game, which will be preceded by a series of theatrical acts, will be turned over to the newly formed living war memorials commission of the national committee on physical fitness.

John Kelly of Philadelphia, chairman of the physical fitness program, said "that after the first World War we honored our heroes with a monument or statue in a park or the town square. This time let us perpetuate their memory with a living memorial—a swimming pool, a gymnasium or an athletic field—which will benefit future America."

"I never heard of a boy or girl getting into trouble with the police if their minds were occupied with improving themselves in some sport," James J. Walker, former New York City mayor, told the players and their friends upon their arrival.

Neither manager has yet announced his lineup or batting order. Of the players, Jimmy Enright of St. Louis is the youngest. He was 15 on July 21 and hopes to see action as a second baseman.

Sluggers Unbeaten In Midget League

The young Webster Flyers continued to show great improvement and upset the Obergas last week to keep pace with the Royce Tigers who won on a forfeit from the Ludington team. The Flyers and the Tigers will battle it out for fourth place in the midget league when they meet Monday afternoon at the Webster diamond.

The Webster Sluggers continued to smash all opposition and may prove to be the best midget softball team the league has ever produced. However, they face a severe test when they meet last year's winners, Obergas, on Monday afternoon at Royce park.

The schedule for this week is as follows: Monday—Obergas vs. Sluggers at Royce; Ludington vs. West End Juniors at Junior high; Flyers vs. Tigers at Webster. Wednesday—Obergas vs. West End Juniors at Royce; Sluggers vs. Tigers at Webster; Ludington vs. Flyers at Ludington.

Hurler Sets Major Loop Pace As Boston Tops Senators, 6-2

Boston, Aug. 5 (AP)—Tex Hughson, Boston Red Sox hurler, today became the first major league pitcher to win 17 games this season when he turned back the Washington Senators, 6-2.

Hughson pitched five-hit ball, struck out nine batters and issued two passes as he gave the Senators their 17th defeat in 19 games on their current road trip.

Bobby Doerr accounted for three of the six Boston runs by knocking out a home run and a single. However, Catcher Hal Wagner led the hitting against Pitchers Roger Wolf and "Lefty" Lefebvre, with three hits for four trips to the plate.

The crack Boston hurler had pitched shutout ball going into the eighth inning when Wilfred Lefebvre, former Red Sox hurler up from Holy Cross college, knocked in one run and scored the other Senator tally.

With one out, Lefebvre lapped a triple to the far corner of centerfield—420 feet—to score Johnny Sullivan from third base. Lefebvre scored when George Myatt was an infield out.

After losing their first game of the season Monday night, the Webster Hawks got back to their winning ways by soundly trouncing the Junior High West Enders, 10 to 3, in a Cadet league game played at the Webster park Wednesday night. Bob Ramspeck, Warren Carlson and Billy Courneene were the hitting stars for the Hawks while Trombly was the only West End to hit safely twice.

Wendell Buckland, who has been doing the pitching in the absence of the regular Hawk twirler, held the Junior High team to four hits.

Rose Dean And Enoc Join Yankee Maid As Race Favorites

Goshen, N. Y., (AP)—Rose Dean and Enoc have moved alongside Yankee Maid as favorites in the $42,000 Hambletonian following the Bay filly's defeat in a test for the trotting classic which returns to Good Time Park Wednesday for its eighteenth running.

Eight other colts and fillies are likely contestants in the three-horse affair for which Yankee Maid, owned by A. L. Derby of Wichita, has been the odds on favorite since early spring.

Last Wednesday, however, the Bay filly was beaten in two heats of the Hambletonian test at Old Orchard Beach, Me., by Red Tower, ineligible for the big race, and the sulky followers immediately hinted that Yankee Maid would become a victim of one of the two jinxes which have crept into trotting lore.

ERRORS ADD UP TIGER VICTORY

Newhouser Credited With 17th Win As White Sox Drop Game, 5-3

Chicago, Aug. 5 (AP)—Hal Newhouser' Detroit's star southpaw, scored his 17th victory tonight for a crowd of 17,257, but only after the White Sox, who have been responsible for three of his six defeats this year, made five errors to boot in all the runs in the Tigers' 5 to 3 triumph.

Newhouser, who went the route, was found for 11 hits, including five doubles, by the Sox, and walked four.

Victory came in the ninth. After Ralph Hodgins' fumble of a grounder, a fielder's choice on a bunt, a sacrifice, and an intentional pass filled the bases, Jimmy Outlaw singled through a drawn-in infield to score the two runs that broke the 3-3 tie.

Johnny Humphries, who succeeded Joe Haynes at the start of the ninth, was the losing pitcher.

Outlaw's game-winning two-run single came after Humphries had filled the bases. Joe Hoover was safe when Hodgins booted his grounder. Newhouser bunted, and both runners were safe when Humphries threw too late to second trying to catch Hoover. Roger Cramer sacrificed, and Humphries purposely passed Eddie Mayo to fill the bases.

Outlaw's single to right center drove in Hoover and Newhouser, and Mayo advanced to third. Joe Orenge hit into a double play.

The White Sox scored in the opening frame after Newhouser fanned Leroy Schalk, tossed out E. Carnett and walked Johnny Dickshot. Hodgins doubled down the left field line, scoring Dickshot.

Walks Fill Bases. The Tigers moved into the lead with a two-run spurge in the second frame. Both runs were unearned, however. Dick Wakefield walked and Pinky Higgins was safe on an error. Paul Richards walked, filling the bases.

Wakefield scored on Hoover's fly. Newhouser fanned and Cramer reached first when Haynes booted his grounder down the first base line, Higgins scoring on the play.

The White Sox tied the count in their half of the second inning when, with two out, Haynes doubled down the right field line and Schalk doubled to left center, scoring Haynes.

With one out in the fourth, Hoover got to first on an error and Newhouser singled to left, advancing Hoover to second. Cramer fouled out, and Mayo singled to center, scoring Hoover.

The Tigers held the lead until the eighth stanza when Ray Clarke, batting for Haynes, dropped a single into short center, scoring Mike Tresh with the tying run.

The Tigers were without the services of First Baseman Rudy York, who had pulled a muscle in his right side. Orenge covered the initial cast.

Paul (Dizzy) Trout and Frank (Stub) Overmire will get the Tiger mound assignments for tomorrow's double-header. They will oppose Bill Dietrich and Orval Grove.

After the twin bill, the Tigers will have a two-day vacation before continuing their 20-day round trip on which they will play Washington, Philadelphia, Boston and New York in that order.

Score by innings:
Detroit --- 020 100 002—5 7 0
Chicago --- 110 000 010—3 11 5
Newhouser and Richards;
Haynes, Humphries and Tresh.

Flyers Throw Big Scare Into Top Midget Team

The tough Webster Flyers threw a scare into the undefeated Webster Sluggers before losing to their bigger playground rivals, 8 to 3, in a Midget league game played at Webster park Wednesday afternoon. The young Flyers were the first team to hold the Sluggers to less than twenty runs this season. Tom Way, Dick Smokovich and Jim Nyquist got two hits each for the Flyers while the hitting stars for the Sluggers were John Martine, Billy Mayenleh and Bud Katrinski.

Score by innings:
Flyers ----- 101 010 0—3 9 2
Sluggers ----- 010 204 8—8 12 1
Batteries: Flyers, Jim McCarthy and Peter Kutcher; Sluggers, Sonny Oosen, John Cousineau and Jim Nyquist.

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

The tribute to Connie Mack at Philadelphia Friday night upon the occasion of his 50th anniversary as a major league manager represents one most refreshing sports incidents of the year. It was a tribute from all of America to one of the grandest names in the world of athletics. A lot of men have made baseball the great institution that it is today—men like Ty Cobb, Babe Ruth, Judge Landis, Mickey Cochrane, to name only a few, but the man who has made the greatest contribution to baseball over the longest span of years is Connie Mack.

Connie Mack entered baseball at a time when baseball players were regarded as ruffians and ruffians were permitted to stay only in third rate hotels. It is difficult to imagine Connie Mack associated with "a gang of ruffians." Because of him and men like him, baseball rose gradually but steadily to its present respected position in public affairs. It is to the everlasting credit of this great baseball leader that he has never been even remotely involved in an unsavory incident that may have reflected in any way upon the integrity of organized baseball.

Can a catcher—or any other player—confuse the batter by calling balls and strikes as the ball is delivered by the pitcher? This question came up recently in one of the city games. The umpire ordered the catcher involved to cease and desist, whereupon his authority for this order was questioned. That the umpire obviously possesses such authority is contained in the following excerpt from the rules book: "The (the umpires) shall have the power to order a player, coach, trainer, captain or manager to do or omit to do any act which in their judgment is necessary to give force and effect to one or all of these rules, and to inflict penalties for violations of the rules as herein-after prescribed."

The authority granted to arbiters in any athletic contest—baseball, football, basketball, etc., is always far-reaching, particularly in cases involving conduct of players. This grant of power is the fundamental basis of authority, for without it an arbiter would be useless to the game. The rules books in all well organized sports outline the prerogatives of players, spectators, etc., and then generally wind up the code by providing elastic powers to the arbiters, permitting them to make decisions not specifically authorized elsewhere in order to make decisions in the best interests of the game.

Hit and Miss—The pari mutuel handle at Arlington, Chicago, for the 40 day season just ended was $36,536,552, about 60 per cent above last year's figure. . . . No border crossing permits will be issued next winter to Canadian hockey players of draft age who wish to play hockey in the United States. . . . Several outstanding players are affected by the ruling. . . . Larry Lane, Negro heavyweight, has been arrested on a technical charge of manslaughter following the death of Lem Franklin, knockout victim.

Leading contenders in the competition up until the present are the Lorrie skippered by Earl Owen and John Jacobs' Ah Mie. Winner of the contest will represent the Escanaba Yacht club in the Green Bay Sea Gull championship race to be held at Ephraim on Saturday, August 12.

Starter for today's race will be Dr. R. H. Banks, chairman of the Escanaba Yacht club's regatta committee.

The course from the start at the east end of the city dock will be to the lighthouse buoy, then to the red can buoy and then reverse the course to the finish line. The course offers a good view to spectators on the shore.

Softball Meeting Set For Monday: Tournament Aug. 13

There will be a softball meeting Monday night, August 7, at 8:30 at the Escanaba recreation center on South 14th street.

Drawings for the U. P. tournament to be held next Sunday, August 13, will take place. Officers, umpires and team managers who expect to enter the tournament are asked to be present. An all-day program with a large number of teams participating requires a lot of work and planning, and with good cooperation boosters hope to again make this Escanaba tournament the success that it has enjoyed in the past.

There are also some teams who have not as yet turned in their report on last Thursday's benefit game. It is hoped they will do so by Monday night so that a complete summary may be taken.

Ho! Hum! Pavot Is The Winner Again

New York, Aug. 5 (AP)—William M. Jeffords' unbeaten Pavot, spun six furlongs down the Widener straightway at Belmont today in 1:12 1-5 and won the $10,000 United States Hotel stakes for two-year-olds by three lengths from William Ziegler, Jr.'s Estem.

War Jeep, from the Maine Chance farms, was third. The winner paid $3.40, $3.00 and $2.50.

Junior Hardballers Go To Nahma Today

Pennant Chances Of New York Team Dealt Severe Blow

Philadelphia, Aug. 5 (AP)—The Philadelphia Athletics dealt the New York Yankees' pennant chances a severe blow today, by sweeping a twin-bill from the world champions 2-1 and 2-0 before 4,732 fans.

After yielding a home run blow by George Stinewiss in the first frame, Luke Hamlin, veteran A's hurler, held the Yankees scoreless the remainder of the way to hang up his fourth victory in the opener.

Ernie Bonham lost his fifth start, giving up eight hits to six for Hamlin. After Hamlin had tied the score in the fifth when he batted in Joe Burns with a single, Edgar Busch doubled in the seventh to score Burns with the winning run.

Russ Christopher bettered Hamlin's first game performance by blanking the Yankees with fly hits in the nightcap, giving the New Yorkers a total of 17 consecutive innings.

Steve Roser was the loser, allowing the Mackmen both their runs in the fifth when Bill McGhee doubled, Busch singled, scoring McGhee, and Christopher, himself doubled in Busch.

a car company, and now and then he gets an assignment to drive some very high officers. At least that will give him something to talk about to his grandchildren. Private Pyle is married and has been overseas nine months. I try as we might, we couldn't establish any relationship. That might have been due to the fact that my name isn't Pyle at all, but Count Spozzo Chef Dupont D'Artagnan.

Our family sprang from a long line of Norman milkmaids. We took the name Pyle after the Jones murder cases in 1739—January. I think it was. My great grandfather built the empire state building. Why am I telling you all this?

Department of wartime distorted values—the other day a soldier offered to trade a French farmer three horses for three eggs. The soldier had captured the horses from the Germans. The trade didn't come off—the farmer already had three horses.

And—at one of our evacuation hospitals the other day a wounded soldier turned over 90,000 francs, equivalent to $1800. He'd picked them up in a captured German headquarters. The Army is now in the process of looking up regulations to see whether the soldier can keep the money.

In the very early days of the invasion I said in this column that Capt. Ralph L. Haga of Prospect, Va., claimed to be the first chaplain ashore on D-Day.

Well, I got into trouble over that, because he wasn't. If I'd had any sense I would have known better myself. The first chaplain on the beachhead were those who jumped with the paratroopers and there were a batch of them—I believe 17, altogether. They were in Normandy hours before Chaplain Haga touched the beach.

As one bunch of paratroopers wrote me, "our chaplains had already rendered their first consolation service in France before Captain Haga got his feet wet." So all credit where credit is due.

One afternoon several weeks ago I went into Cherbourg with an infantry company and one of the doughboys gave me two cans of French sardines they'd captured from the Germans.

Right in the midst of battle is a funny place to be giving a man sardines, but this is a funny war. At any rate, I was grateful and I put them in my musette bag when I got back to my tent that night. I forgot all about them.

The reason I mention it now is that last night I got a hungry spell and was rummaging around the bag for candy or something and ran onto these sardines. They tasted mighty good.

LOCAL SOLDIER WOUNDED AGAIN

Pfc. Edward L. Groleau Battle Casualty In Italian War

Pfc. Edward L. Groleau, son of Mrs. Rose Groleau, 331 North Sixteenth street, was seriously wounded in action July 12 in Italy, the war department has informed his mother.

Prior to the receipt of the telegram, however, Pfc. Groleau, who also was wounded in action in Italy January 13, informed his mother that he had been wounded in the right hip and right hand on July 12 and that he is getting along satisfactorily. He was wounded in the right shoulder in January.

The day before he was wounded the second time, July 11, he met his brother, Elmer, in Italy, the first meeting of the brothers in two years. Elmer is in the merchant marine and took advantage of a leave to find Edward in an advanced camp in Italy. Elmer is expected home late this month.

The extent of the injuries to Edward's right hip and right hand have not been indicated. The letter received from him was written by one of the Escanaba soldier's companions, but the letter indicated Edward's right hand is in a cast.

Former Gladstone Ship Captain Gets Credit For U-Boat

"Our Navy," official publication of the U. S. Navy, gives belated credit for the sinking of a submarine to a corvette of which Lt. Comdr. J. I. Mingay, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Mingay, of Minneapolis, formerly of Gladstone, was the commanding officer.

"Our Navy" recently carried the following letter written by a member of the crew of the corvette B-1:

"Dear Sirs:
"In your mid-January issue you carried an item about PC 565 sinking a sub. Why don't you get the straight dope on that sub sinking?"

"Some credit should go to Lt. Comdr. J. I. Mingay, captain of the B-1. (The Coast Guard's got it now). It was the B-1 that fired the shot that put the sub out of commission."

"We boys who were on the B-1 give all the credit to the PC 565, but it is just right that J. I. Mingay, captain of our ship, gets some credit."

"S. Babek, SF3/c

"Belated credit to Lt. Comdr. J. I. Mingay. His crew seems to think plenty of his qualities."
—Ed."

No Complaints

BY CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER

I have met a good many of the boys who have returned from overseas, for it's been my privilege to perform in a number of the big hospitals where the wounded men are being cared for. Those of you who have also visited these hospitals know what a wonderful, moving and inspiring experience that is. Those boys are cheerful, uncomplaining and not in the least disillusioned.

Only last week I met a kid who had lost both legs and one arm in Sicily. I was asked if I would go over to his bed and say something to him. Of course I didn't know just what to say, so I weakly murmured, "Hello, how are you?" He gave me that kind of grin that only American kids, God bless them, can give, and said, "Oh, I'm fine—no complaints, no complaints at all."

But on my way home on the train, I thought of a few complaints I had made during the day. I'd complained because I didn't have enough gas to drive my car to the house of a friend; because I no longer could get a certain kind of lipstick, and because I spent my ration stamp on a pair of shoes that hurt my feet. And I can tell you I felt pretty disgusted with myself.

And behind me a woman was telling another woman where she could buy black market nylon stockings at $9 a pair, and if I hadn't been what I fondly suppose myself to be—a lady—I'd have hauled off and socked her one because I was haunted by the thought of those boys—haunted by the question of what can I do for them.

Those boys, as I said before, are uncomplaining and not in the least disillusioned. But they are going to be plenty complaining and plenty disillusioned if, when they come back, they don't find us doing as much in our way as they have done over there.
